

Trail 24 - Reynolds Flat/Jordan Pines Area

Duration: Variable, no designated trails

Distance: Variable, no designated trails

Difficulty: Easy

Trailhead: Across the road—S.R.152—from Mill D trailhead

Elevation: 7268'

Avalanche: Low

Map: Park City West 7.5' quadrangle

GPS Coordinates: Not needed

Dogs: Not Allowed in Big Cottonwood Canyon

Introduction: Reynolds Flat and Jordan Pines area sprawls out next to S.R. 152, the road up Big Cottonwood Canyon. Because it is flat, easily accessible, and the length is determined by how long you want to play in the snow, it's a great place for beginners. There are a few small hills right off the road that families often sled on as well. Finding a parking spot should be doable as the lot is plenty big, but the area is popular.

How to get there: The Reynolds Flat/Jordan Pines area sits 8.8 miles up Big Cottonwood Canyon on the south side of the road. The Reynolds flat area is popular for tubing. It has a nice parking area used by skiers, snowshoers, tubers, and boy scouts. The Cardiff Fork road, the road accessed by this parking area, is gated in winter so one must park here and walk .25 miles up the gated road to the entrance of Jordan Pines Campground.

Trail Description: Once parked, the surrounding terrain to the south is your playground. Beginners can wander and explore making their own trails over small hills, down the closed off road (Cardiff Road), and deeper into the campground and surrounding arrears beyond. Vault toilets should be open and you can connect with Spruces Campground to the east for nice loops. If you wander far enough to find cabins, please respect the private property. Cardiff road also takes you back to the trailhead for Donut Falls. (Trail 25)